WASHINGTON, March 17.—(UP) Republican progressives began formulating definite plans to combat the renomination of President Hoover today, and Senator Burton K. Wheeler, democrat, Montana, came out with the prediction that Governor Franklin Roosevelt, of New York, would be the democratic presidential candidate next year.

"If the democratic national convention were held tomorrow, Governor Roosevelt would be nominated on the first ballot," said Wheeler, one of the sponsors of the progressive conference held here last week.

Wheeler, although an anti-prohibitionist, is not in sympathy with the attempt of Chairman John J. Raskob and other democratic leaders to make prohibition a leading issue in 1932. According to Wheeler, the campaign should be fought on economic questions and he believes Roosevelt has a lead in the preconvention race because the New York governor is favored by progressive elements in both parties.

Meanwhile republican progressives, searching about for a method of crystallizing liberal sentiment so that it can be made effective politically next year, were considering putting a ticket in the field against President Hoover in states having presidential primaries. Just who would head this ticket has not been decided. It might be Senator George W. Norris, republican, Nebraska, or it might be Senator William E. Borah, republican, Idaho. Both are being considered. Or it might be Norris in some states and Borah in some others since the central idea is to accumulate a bloc of progressive votes in the republican convention rather than to forward the presidential stock of any individual. In California, Mr. Hoover's home state, it might be Senator Hiram Johnson, although the latter has done nothing to encourage any such idea.

Progressive strategy in this instance is based on the belief that if some outstanding liberal could defeat Mr. Hoover in several state primaries the conservative elements in the party would become alarmed and begin looking for a more radical alternative.

Neither Norris nor Borah, it is understood, have consented to the proposed use of their names for these purposes, although suggestions have been made to that effect.

Borah and Borah were re-elected to the senate for six years last November, hence would be free of any personal embarrassments during the campaign next year.

Man Who Cooked for Wilson Convicted of $55 Theft Here

More than a decade ago, J. W. McFarland cooked for President Wilson and his family during the peace conference. The morning the ex-army chef will stand before Judge John D. Humphrey in Fulton superior court to learn whether he must serve a sentence of two to five years, or whether he will get off with a misdemeanor penalty of 30 months or less. McFarland was convicted Tuesday of larceny from the person. J. J. Vaughn said that McFarland took $55 and pocketbook from his room on February 1, but McFarland denied it. Judge Humphrey signed off on the record until today in order that McFarland's case might be investigated from the standpoint of leniency. McFarland was convicted Tuesday of larceny from the person. J. J. Vaughn said that McFarland took $55 and pocketbook from his room on February 1, but McFarland denied it. Judge Humphrey signed off on the record until today in order that McFarland's case might be investigated from the standpoint of leniency.

The ex-soldier-cook told Judge Humphrey that he served overseas with the Thirteenth division, and after the armistice was signed, he chose to take a 90-day leave at home and then come back to the army of occupation. Instead of going home, however, he was assigned to the peace conference, and, along with other chefs, cooked the meals for President Wilson, Mrs. Wilson, the Wilsons' daughter and others attending the conference. Later, McFarland said, he returned to this country on the George Washington with the Wilson party.

Mrs. Blakenore and Lois Phillips were charged with assault and battery on the person of Mrs. Birdie Dend, of 142 Linden avenue, N. ### PREACHERS SEEK WALKER'S OUSTER

Douglasville Bailiff Killed in Accident

NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP) Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt late tonight received from Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and the Rev. John Haynes Holmes formal charges asking the removal from office of Mayor James J. Walker.

These charges were based upon a section of the public officers law under which the City club recently asked the removal of District Attorney C. T. Crain. They were believed to be part of the plan of the participants in last night's meeting which would discuss their nature.

The governor explained that he did not expect to read the charges until tomorrow. He gave the late evening of his 25th marriage to his wife, the attorney general, to consider what he would do.

Neither Norris nor Borah, it is understood, have consented to the proposed use of their names for these purposes, although suggestions have been made to that effect.

Both Norris and Borah were re-elected to the senate for six years last November, hence would be free of any personal embarrassments during the campaign next year.

Ruth Nichols Ties Hawks' Record For New York-Washington Flight

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP) Spurred by official word that she had broken the women's altitude record, Miss Ruth Nichols, society aviatrix, today added a 200-mile-an-hour, record-equaling flight between New York and Washington to her roster of accomplishments.

Later today she took off on a return flight to New York after making the trip between the Jersey City airport and the Anacostia naval air station in one hour and five minutes. This time there was only five seconds from the unofficial record held by Captain Frank Hawks. It will be checked by the war department.

An announcement that she had obtained a height of 174 feet in an altitude flight over Jersey City on March 6 was made today by the National Aeronautic Association.

LEGISLATOR CALLS LEA AND CALDWELL 'CHEATS, ROBBERS'

Pair With Ramsey Have Defrauded and Stolen From Taxpayers, Says Young Tennessean.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 17.—(AP)—From the lips of a young rural legislator there issued today condemnation of Colonel Luke Lea, Tennessee publisher and political leader, Rogers Caldwell, financier, and J. B. Ramsey, banker, whose names have been linked together in the legislative investigation into the state's financial crisis.

Representative Robert P. Brown described the three as "thos. men who have robbed, cheated, defrauded and stolen from the taxpayers of Tennessee" and said their indictment by a federal grand jury "meets with the hearty approval of the taxpayers of Tennessee."

Indictments returned recently at Greenville charged Caldwell, Lea and Ramsey with conspiracy to violate the national banking laws and with violating them in connection with transactions of the Holston Union National Bank at Knoxville, of which Ramsey was president.

In its investigation of nearly $7,000,000 of state funds being tied up in various banks, including the Holston Union, the state auditor heard testimony that Lea and Caldwell, leaders of the failed investment house of Caldwell & Company were identified with the defunct institutions.

McFarland described himself as the "representative of the great masses of common people from the little red clay banks of Hickman county," spoke in behalf of a resolution calling for the legislature to recess Saturday, March 23, to consider the investigation, and planned to go to the various state departments. It was to the committee's activities that he attributed the federal indictments.

Pothea concurred in the recess resolution: "viva voce votes, and for nine weeks Chairman Walter Faulkner has indicated that he will be free to conduct investigations without hindrance."

Faulkner has indicated that the finance and taxation, purchasing and highway departments will receive early consideration.

Brown argued that it was common knowledge that Caldwell and Lea "were running the affairs of our government."

House Speaker Walter M. Hayes took the floor to urge the recess, desiring that the investigation be deferred "in view of the thousand developments yet to come more startling in their revelations than what have gone before."

Finger of Scorn.

In its final report Haynes said the investigation had "brought to point its finger directly at each offending officer" declaring that "the public is demanding" that at the guilty be punished as a result of this wild orgy of public expenditure which resulted in the tie-up of millions in favored banks."

Haynes added, "must be accounted for and her credit must be re-established."

In the senate the recess resolution was adopted without debate. An amendment that would end the recess May 4, was tabled, 10 to 15, and the senators then shouted their approval of the measure.

A joint senate resolution introduced by Senator T. L. Coleman, of Marshall county, calls upon the committee to dispense with the services of its two attorneys, Joe V. Williams, of

Atlanta, and Frank G. Thompson, of Douglasville.

Hoover Is Ready for Ocean Trip

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(P)—Happily contemplating sailing into sunny seas, President Hoover told Washington correspondents today the only news was that he was all set for departure.

The cabinet meeting had concluded a while before. One by one the cabinet members left the White House.

As the 35 or more correspondents entered the president's office, they found him smiling and talking at his desk. He smiled. There was none of the tension so frequently apparent during the past session of congress.

A reference to readiness for the trip, which begins on leaving tomorrow night for Old Point Comfort, Va., an exchange of greetings, and that was all. The distinguished mission was given that weighty matters will play second fiddle to relaxation in the next fortnight.

One of the last cabinet members to be with the president was Secretary Hurley, who has charge of Porto Rico affairs under the war department. He and Secretary Wilbur, under whose interior department comes the Virgin Islands administration, will be in the small party that embarks West Indiesward on the battleship Arizona from Old Point Comfort Thursday morning.

Discussion of Problems Missionaries Face Features Conference of Georgia Baptists

Attending the statewide conference on foreign missions of the Baptist church held at the First Baptist church Tuesday, a group of outstanding officials are shown in the photograph above. Left to right, they are, Dr. James W. Merritt, executive secretary-treasurer of the Georgia Baptist convention; Dr. W. Eugene Sallee, of Richmond, Va., home secretary of the foreign mission board; Dr. J. C. Wilkinson, pastor of the First Baptist church, Athens, Ga., president of the executive board of the state convention; Dr. John E. White, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Savannah, president of the Georgia Baptist convention, and Mrs. Sallee, wife of Dr. Sallee, and veteran foreign mission worker. Staff photo by Kenneth Rogers.

Discussion of the problems faced by missionaries of the Baptist church in foreign fields consumed the attention of members of the statewide conference of Georgia Baptists held Tuesday at the First Baptist church.

James W. Merritt, executive secretary-treasurer of the Georgia Baptist convention, presided at the afternoon, afternoon and evening sessions of the conference, which heard addresses by a noted band of officials and missionary workers. A musical program under the direction of George L. Hamrick and W. A. Huey features all.

In her talk before the nearly 1,000 members attending the conference, Mrs. Sallee struck the keynote of the foreign mission problem when she declared that the battle line of workers in the Orient by virtue of a shortage of funds and abundance of effort necessary to prosecute scheduled programs. It is not the exposure to physical danger from insufficient sustenance as is often the case, Mrs. Sallee told her audience, nor that even of the harrowing odds of Chinese bands. Lack of funds and the necessity for pruning the ranks of native mission workers are creating obstacles to enlisted workers that is threatening the breakdown of the entire missionary structure.

Dr. Truett delivered the closing address of the conference at its final session, held at the First Baptist church during the evening.

RAIL RATE PEACE AIM OF FACTIONS

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 17. (Special)—The battle between southern and northern interests over the impending revision of freight rates on cotton goods is developing into such a far-reaching and complicated clash that all the combatants are seeking to postpone the final issue. An interstate commerce commission board today took under advisement the joint plea of most of the interested groups to extend beyond May 9 the time limit for filing of the new rate schedules. A decision is expected within about a week.

Railways and shippers as well as the textile producers of both regions will in the meantime continue the conferences which it is hoped will bring about a rate scale satisfactory to all groups, including the interstate commerce commission itself. The parleys which have been progressing recently in various parts of the country led inevitably to the appearance yesterday of a number of statements of the several interests to seek more time to adjust their differences.

The southern textile interests, now joined by the Alabama public service commission, contend that the changes likely to take place would move them still farther into the North. They fear that they will lose the almost equally competitive rates which they now enjoy with New England to the vast region north of the Ohio river and around Chicago, that constitutes their principal market with the New England states. They want to keep the situation as capturing their trade. In an effort to win back the position formerly held by New England in textile manufacture, the mill men in that region and also the railway heads are naturally pressing for the revision.

Railway experts in the capital declare that the schedules are so complicated and so much remains to be done that it is utterly impossible to predict now whether the fears of the southerners are actually justified.

It is quite possible according to reliable authorities that there may be reductions on rates to intermediate points which might balance possible increases on the longest hauls.

One thing seems certain, however, and that is that the general run of rates from the south to the north central markets will not be any lower, even if they do not undergo an increase. The southern textile interests are apprehensive that in equalizing the short and long haul rates the tendency will be to increase the latter.

The situation is a direct result of the commission's order of January 17 through its fourth section board denying application of southern and southwestern roads for relief from the long and short haul requirements on cotton goods, including fabrics, rope, waste, yarn, shade cloth, hosiery, and rayon. Under the interstate commerce commission act of 1911 it became unlawful for a rate on a long haul to be less than that on an intermediate point.

For years hundreds of railroads had demanded special low rates to distant points to open up markets and encourage their own business. So many violations of the new law resulted that the commission could make only slow progress in adjusting the rates on each commodity to conform to it.

Finally last December it came to the cotton textiles.

Even when the new schedules are filed on May 9 or later, there may still be further contests before the rates become effective. The commission has to approve them, and if it finds it cannot bring about a satisfactory adjustment it may throw the whole thing out the window and institute what rates it considers proper.

FOUNTAIN SPEAKS BEFORE PASTORS

A paper "Fountain and Its Relation to Christianity" was discussed by Bishop W. A. Fountain before the Atlanta A. M. E. Ministers' Union at Big Bethel church Tuesday. Dr. W. A. McClelland, vice president, presided. Rev. R. H. Porter acted as secretary.

The occasion being "Fifth Day" at the ministers' union, the various committees made full reports on present conditions and future prospects in the religious educational and missionary life of the church in Georgia.

Each freed education movements throughout the state in interest of Morris Brown University were emphasized by Dr. D. T. Babcock, T. T. Ivey, A. R. Cooper, H. D. Canady, C. A. Wingfield, J. H. Edge, B. G. Dawson, John Harman, D. R. Forbes, S. R. Dinklin, Dean Giles, W. B. Clark and B. R. Holmes.

SCHOOL FOR GIRLS FACES TWO PROBES

Information Obtained Will Be Forwarded to Governor Miller.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 17.—(P)—Two state agencies today began assembling first-hand information regarding conditions at the Alabama State Training School for Girls to be presented Governor B. M. Miller and the board of trustees of the institution at Montgomery next Thursday.

The reports will be reviewed at an open hearing of charges of cruelty and brutal treatment of inmates by Mrs. F. Champion, superintendent. A legislative committee has recommended that Mrs. Champion be replaced immediately.

Miss Anne Davis, state prison inspector, was directed by the governor to make a thorough study of existing conditions at the school and to have her report ready for the trustees' meeting.

Lewis Bowen and W. B. Sasser, state auditors of public accounts, began an audit of the affairs of the school, including all financial accounts, in response to the call of the legislative committee. The investigation found no record of an audit within the past five years.

Mrs. Charles G. Brown, a trustee, announced she would attend the meeting in Montgomery, adding that she had "lived in vain for four years to have the school investigated."

J. T. Wade, who said he formerly was a state convict guard and father of a girl in the school, today came to the defense of Mrs. Champion. He said his daughter had told him "everything she saw in the school during the four years she had been there" "they had made a lady of her."

Wade said he had never refused permission to see his daughter and that he had been to see her several times during the last three months. She was among those excluded from the committee investigation because she was charged with being a "pet" and "spy."

The man was in Mrs. Champion's office when newspapermen went there, and when they attempted to talk to her she ordered away.

Court stenographers are transcribing the more than 200 typewritten pages of evidence obtained by the committee which will be presented the governor.

DEATH OF AUGUSTA GIRL SAID NATURAL

Vivian Gordon Murder
Probe Marked by Lightning Changes.

NEW YORK, March 17.—(UP)—The Vivian Gordon murder trail got hot and cold by lightning changes today as authorities denied there was any possibility for placing the blame of a second woman vice graft witness.

Miss Lucia Dickens, formerly of Augusta, Ga., red-haired girl who danced under the name Georgia Gray, died Saturday night in Bellevue hospital after an illness of four days. Though she was originally said to have died of pneumonia, Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, ordered a chemical analysis of the organs to determine whether they contained poison.

First Charles B. McLaughlin, Bronx district attorney, announced he had a man who had named the stranglers of the carrot-haired vice graft tipster.

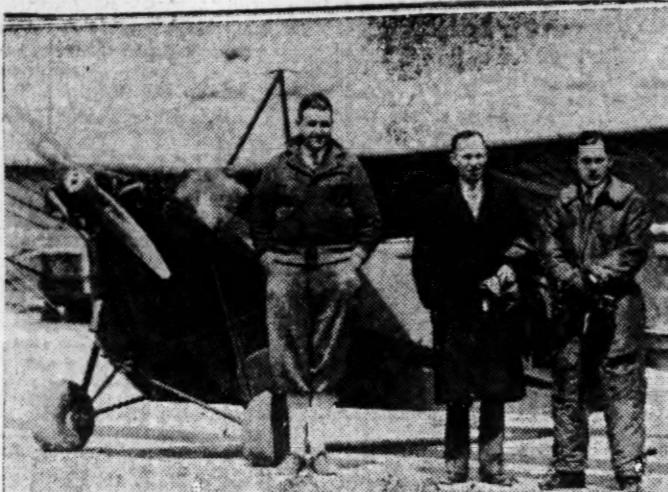

A few minutes later he said the man admitted his tale was a hoax in an attempt to fill his purse with newspaper money.

The inquest was held in $2,500 bail and no material witness.

The man gave the name of George Teddy Spanish when arraigned. Detectives said he told them that he met "two Italians" the day before Miss Gordon was strangled with a clothesline noose. He brought the ship here Monday. The tiny monoplane attracted much attention at the airport Tuesday and was flown by a number of local pilots. The craft provides two seats, side by side, and is powered with two-cylinder, 35-horsepower Aeronca motor.

which forced Treat to desert his ice-sheathed plane. The Richmond-Washington hop ordinarily takes about an hour. During his long fight with the elements, Jameson had covered the distance between Richmond and the national capital five times, plowing back and forth in a fruitless effort to find a hole through which he could dive to safety. Flying by radio, Jameson finally circled over Bull Run, and then down the Potomac, where clouds blanketed the ground completely. It was then after tear gas had been released in the room.

The woman, Mrs. William Tibbs, of Greenwood, had shot herself in the leg. She told officers to leave her alone and she had suffered from loss of blood. She was taken after tear gas had been released in the room.

John H. Hudson asked that the defense be allowed to call the police station and find the electric chair, but Judge Humphries ordered the trial to proceed on the ground that no confession was involved.

'ELECTRIC CHAIR' GRILLING CHARGED

Negroes on Trial Claim
They Were Mistreated
by Police.

Testimony to the effect that Atlanta policemen maintain an "electric chair" at headquarters in an effort to obtain confessions was given Tuesday during trial of Rogers Sanford and James Clark, negroes, acquitted on burglary charges.

Sanford charged that he was forced to sit in the chair while police sought a confession. He never was accused of the charge of breaking into the Stocking Shop at 16 Broad, S. W.

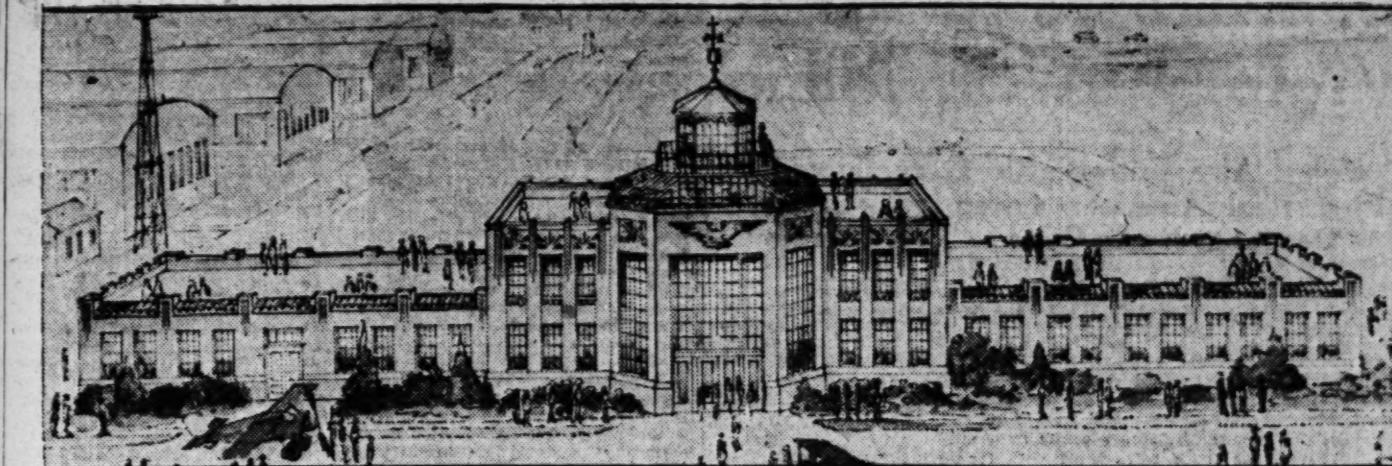

The defense attempted to introduce other witnesses to testify that they had been forced to sit in the police electric chair while being questioned. Judge Humphries ruled out the testimony on the ground that it had not been shown that either Sanford or Clark had confessed and the testimony from witnesses was not relevant to the case.

Judge Humphries' courtroom was stirred recently when a negro defendant charged that a policeman had beaten him and he had been forced to take the same medicine unless he told the truth.

During Tuesday's "electric chair" testimony, Assistant Solicitor-General John H. Hudson asked that the defense be allowed to call the police station and find the electric chair, but Judge Humphries ordered the trial to proceed on the ground that no confession was involved.

Plans for arousing public interest

Junior Chamber To Hold "Aviation Day" at Candler Field To Arouse Interest in Proposed Administration Building

The proposed new administration building at Candler air field, to be erected by the Junior Chamber of Commerce as its 1931 objective, will look like the above sketch, if plans prepared by the architects for J. H. Gray, field manager, are carried out. The building as shown would be located on the present site of the Curtiss-Wright hangar, which would be moved to another location on the hanger line. The building would house ticket offices, waiting rooms, lunch room, weather bureau offices, the air mail postoffice, the field manager's office, rest rooms, the department of commerce's inspection department, and similar offices. The plans were prepared by Jess Wilhoit, architect, of the chamber of commerce, said that the department of commerce is sending three additional inspectors to Candler field to do work here formerly done in Washington.

Richard L. Hull, of Eastern Air Transport, Inc., and chairman of the junior chamber aviation committee, served as toastmaster, and spoke of the tremendous growth of the aviation industry here, to a point where 30,000 letters are handled each day.

Under a program sponsored by the junior chamber, the administration building will be erected with funds raised by private subscription and paid out of revenue derived from the concessions, it was said. Support of the operators, the junior and senior chambers of commerce and the county aviation committee was pledged to the movement.

Willis B. Haviland, of American Airways, Inc., said that Atlanta is near the top in scheduled operations and near the foot on airport equipment. Major operators in aviation all over the country have expended large sums of money in the last year in time getting back, and it is up to the public to help support the industry, he said. "Aviation is getting down to a sound basis and is running out the 'high pressure' boys," Haviland said. "I would give Field Manager Gray credit for the big things he has done for the field under difficulties."

C. H. Dolan, of Eastern Air Transport, Inc., said that the time has come for Atlanta to provide an administration building. Other fields have splendid administration buildings and it is time for Atlanta to keep abreast of the times, he said.

Gus Lazar, manager of the local Curtiss-Wright base, and Beeler Blewings, of the Blevins Aircraft Corporation, joined in the sentiment that Candler field needs such a feature.

Frank Shaw, president of the junior chamber, urged that Candler Field be made the leading airport of the southeast, and that Atlanta be kept on the air map.

EAST POINT MEETING

INDORSES BOND ISSUE

Leopold and Loeb To See Each Other

JOLIET, Ill., March 17.—(UPI)—Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, separated since they began life terms for the murder of Bobbie Franks, are to see each other once again.

Keep always apart by transfers which placed one youth in the new ville Tuesday night attended an enthusiastic meeting in the interest of the proposed half-million dollar bond issue for county schools, and the restoration of the 2 1/2-mill school tax levy recently declared unconstitutional by the supreme court. The meeting was held in the auditorium of the Russell High school at East Point, and both county projects were given wide endorsement.

The two measures were presented to the audience by Jere A. Wells, superintendent of county schools, and responses were made by W. A. Sanders, mayor of Hapeville, and by George A. Longino, manager of the East Point branch of the First National bank. A committee consisting of Bert Balchen, Clarence Chamberlin, Colonel James G. Fitzmaurice and Captain Lewis A. Yancey is handling arrangements. Among those invited are the ambassadors of the foreign countries touched in the flights.

Mr. Wells announced that the board is gathering names for a petition to the state legislature to referendum the two measures, and added that half the required number of names already have been secured. The election will concern only those residents of the county who live outside the borough of Atlanta, he announced. A similar meeting will be held tonight at Sandy Springs, in Oak Grove district.

NICE, France, March 17.—(UP)—Charlotte, 18-month-old infant daughter of Mrs. Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, will be allowed to stay in jail with her mother, held following the fatal shooting of her husband last week.

"They will have separate cells; Stateville, of course," he said, "but they will have plenty of opportunity to talk to each other under ordinary routine."

The change brings 30 others besides Nirdlinger to Stateville, more modern of the two institutions, and the warden emphasized it was not a special favor.

A doctor who examined Nirdlinger's body said that the man had recently undergone an operation on the skull, which may have an important bearing on the case.

The preliminary examination of Mrs. Nirdlinger is scheduled to begin at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

M. Clemenceau Praises U. S. Troops for Great Victory at St. Mihiel

Poincare Also Enthusiastic Over Success of First Real American Offensive—Premier Desires to Brave Guns to Tour Front.

BY GENERAL JOHN J. PERSHING.

(Copyright, 1918, by The North American Newspaper Alliance; all rights reserved, including the Scopes Trial, in whole or in part prohibited.)

Premier Clemenceau came to visit our army Sunday, September 15, and was most enthusiastic in his congratulations upon our St. Mihiel victory. He wished to go over the field and particularly to visit Thiesscourt, but it seemed to me still too dangerous, and I said: "We can not take the chance of losing a prime minister."

Moreover, the roads were filled with traffic moving in both directions, so much to M. Clemenceau's disappointment. I gave instructions that he should not be allowed to go.

At luncheon that day with the President and Madame Poincare on their train at Sampigny, just south of St. Mihiel, they also expressed themselves as being much pleased at our success, especially so because the town is now longer under the enemy's guns.

After lunch we visited the site of their residence, only to find that it had been demolished by German artillery. It had been a beautiful though modest house, and its location especially caused me to wonder if a fine view of the Meuse valley.

It was a sad occasion for them as they looked over the ruins, but they accepted it in the usual courageous French way by saying simply: "C'est la guerre." There was as many others in northern France, many of whose homes had been destroyed, leaving scarcely a trace.

As we strolled about two American artilleries whose brigade happened to be billeted in the village came forward, and when I told them who we visitors were, they seemed to regard my remarks as an introduction, and both walked up and warmly shook hands with the president and Madame Poincare and then quietly went about with us.

It was just another illustration of our democracy, and the president and his wife were very gracious, though much amused by the cordial and rather unconventional manner of their guests.

returned to army headquarters leaving the president and Madame Poincare to be escorted by Colonel Boyd, who was compelled by the president's insistence to take them to Triaucourt.

M. Clemenceau, who dined with me that evening, was much annoyed when he learned about it, as I had denied him the opportunity to go that far to the front.

Marshal Foch and I went to St. Mihiel a few days later, accompanied by General Weygand and my aide, Colonel Boyd, and as we wound around we found people generally going about their business as though nothing had happened. The destruction of buildings was not so great as might have been expected, and the work of reconstruction had already begun.

Marshal Foch was very devout and would speak especially to the general. When we entered, he knelt reverently, and following his example all of us did likewise, remaining some minutes at our devotions. Weygand told me that it was Foch's custom to visit the church whenever he had an opportunity.

We came from there to Hattincourt, where we had a fine view overlooking the St. Mihiel battlefield and as we stood on this prominent point Foch spoke with enthusiasm regarding the battle. Having spent a very pleasant half day, we returned to my quarters at Ligny-en-Barrois for lunch.

In accordance with the understanding of September 2 we were now moving rapidly toward our second great offensive. Questions concerning the concentration and supply of the elements of the first army in the battle area were being worked out by the staff of that army who were giving every possible assistance by the staff of G. H. Q.

My dual capacity as commander-in-chief and commander of the first army I was able principally to place every facility of the A. E. F. at the disposition of the first army.

With the headquarters general staff and the services of supply both in excellent working order, the business of the A. E. F., once general directions were given, was well conducted and I was free to devote my time to the operations.

Great Converging Offensive Due. The general plan of action of the allied armies, as agreed upon at the conference of commanders-in-chief July 23, was to state it simply and briefly, that the offensive would continue, each army driving forward rapidly as possible. The Allied and American operations during the summer had resulted in the reduction of the Chateau Thierry, Amiens and St. Mihiel sectors. The great offensive was now under way. In the sector west of the Meuse river the battle line had remained practically unchanged since 1917. It was on this front the American army was to play its great part. In accordance with Marshal Foch's idea, offensive was to be launched by the allies as follows:

(a) A British-French attack on the general line, St. Quentin-Cambrai, advancing between the Oise and the Scarpe rivers.

(b) A French-American attack on the line Reims-Vergnac-Verdun, advancing between the Suisnes and the Meuse rivers.

(c) A combined Allied attack east of Ypres.

(d) Between the attacks mentioned above, liaison was to be maintained by intervening armies. These operations were to consist of attacks as nearly simultaneous as possible all along the western front.

These natural defenses were strengthened by such artificial means as interlocking barbed wire, fortifications, dugouts, successive lines of trenches, and an unlimited number of concrete machine gun emplacements. With the advantage of commanding positions the enemy was peculiarly well located to pour oblique and flanking fire on any assailant attempting to advance within range between the Meuse and the Argonne.

A dense network of wire entanglements covered every position. It was estimated that the army had resisted four years on this front without being molested. He felt secure in the knowledge that even with few divisions to hold these positions his east and west lines of rail communication in rear would be well protected against the probability of interference.

John D. Says 'No' to Broker Seeking Golf Match on Bet

ORMOND, Fla., March 17.—(AP)—St. Patrick's Day was pleasant for John D. Rockefeller but not for William R. Crissy II, young Philadelphia broker.

Crissy recently set out from home wagering that within a year he would play golf with Mr. Rockefeller, Bobby Jones and the Prince of Wales, and dine with President Hoover.

After almost a week of unsuccessful efforts to play with Mr. Rockefeller, Crissy tried again today but again was disappointed.

He said he would hitch-hike to California and try to arrange a game with the prince who was engaged in making films of his various shots. He tried to arrange the match in Atlanta two weeks ago but found Jones gone when he arrived there.

Mr. Rockefeller started his daily round of golf after dancing a jig on the green honor of the Irish saint, and visiting and joking with visitors. He plays with H. M. Flory, Mrs. Pawtucket, R. M.; Mrs. Margaret Southard, Troy, N. Y.; W. T. Shepard, Lowell, Mass., and Mrs. Warren, his guest.

At the fifth hole, the party was met by Crissy, who had been waiting for him but Mr. Rockefeller consented only to allow him to accompany the players to the end of the course, without participating in the game.

Crissy had been in Daytona Beach a week, registered under another name, to avoid publicity. Since then he has met Mr. Rockefeller each day, but each day, but always receives the same answer—"No, not today."

The Philadelphia broker had said that "man could do anything if he had sufficient presence, good manners, certain ingenuity and an indifference to rebuff."

He ambitiously achieved his first ambition by attending a dinner for newspapermen in Washington, which was attended by President Hoover.

Now he plans to go to California to again try his luck with Jones. He also said he will go to England next summer for a game with the Prince of Wales and that he has not given up hope for a game with Mr. Rockefeller.

HINES ASKS TREASURY FOR $500,000,000

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP)—Veterans Affairs Secretary Hines has called upon the treasury to provide $500,000,000 by April 11 for loans to World War veterans on their compensation certificates. This exceeded by $200,000,000 previous estimates for the period.

In making the request, announced today by the treasury, Hines estimated that 75 per cent of the veterans would apply for loans totalling approximately $1,000,000,000.

Up to last Saturday 372,006 applications had been received, totaling $104,282,874 checks issued totaling $104,035,366, in average of $8367.

"On this basis," Hines added in a letter to Secretary Mellon, "I estimate that the administration will require approximately $500,000,000 during the week ending March 21, and $100,000,000 during each of the ensuing three weeks."

The amount which will be required following this period is problematical, as it is manifestly quite impossible to make an estimate of any degree of accuracy as to the number of applications which will be received in the future; however, I believe that my original projection of 75 per cent of the veterans would avail themselves of the privileges of the amendatory legislation will prove to be reasonably close to the actual experience.

"On such basis, the treasury will be called upon to finance additional loans under the amendment to an amount approximating one billion dollars."

In an accompanying statement Melon said:

"It appears from this letter that for the purpose of making the loans applied for us to March 14, the treasury department will be called upon to furnish approximately $500,000,000 by April 11, including the $100,000,000 more or less, loaned since the new law went into effect."

The request found the treasury $200,000,000 short of the amount asked by Hines. It yesterday sold $300,000,000 in six month 11 1/2 per cent treasury certificates to raise money for the loans.

The $300,000,000 had been expected to meet all requirements until the latter part of May. How the remaining money will be raised has not been announced.

In addition to control of the invention and formula, the Atlantics ask $13,000 damages.

Georgia Girls Consecrated As Foreign Missionaries

Two To Serve in China and Cuba; Methodist Women Seek Right to Ministry.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 17.—(AP)

Three hundred thousand women were enlisted today in a campaign to establish their equality with men in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The woman's missionary council of the church, calling its first conference here, adopted a joint urging members of its affiliated mission societies to support an equality petition to be presented to the 1934 general conference of the church.

Ordination to the ministry, now open to women, was the aim of the report and proposed legislation to be presented to the church conference for approval.

Eleven new missionaries were consecrated at the final session tonight. Five deaconesses, women engaged in domestic, mission and educational work, received their commissions at the same ceremony.

Missionaries consecrated tonight, with their fields, were: Miss Marjorie Beard, Tyler, Texas, Korea; Miss Lucy Clark, Conway, Ark., China; Miss Gertrude Feely, Shelbyville, Mo.; Miss Edith Martin, Harrison, Ark., Africa; Miss Carrie Mayes, Camak, Ga., China; Miss Carrie Norton, Cotton Valley, La., China; Miss Dolores Robeck, Texarkana, Ark.-Texas, Poland; Miss Mary Simmons, Carter, Okla., Brazil; Miss Martha Speer, Bath, N. C., Brazil; Miss Myrtle Ziegler, Asbury, Md., unassigned; Miss Lucille Lewis, Dawson, Ga., Cuba.

Deaconesses commissioned were Miss Erlene Aylor, of Aylor, Va.; Miss Mary Floyd, LaGrange, Ga.; Miss Jewell Matthews, Tallahassee, Fla.; Miss Mary Neetham, Corvallis, Ore., and Miss Ruth Patton, Hartshorn, Okla.

The college of bishops was requested in a resolution to allow the women missionaries to affiliate with the Korean Methodist church as an aid to their work. They now cannot affiliate and retain their standing in the south church.

Florida delegates, promising to support a deaconess at the University of Florida, obtained approval of a request that the church mission board, meeting April 5, at Nashville, assign a worker to the university.

The council pledged its support to anti-lynching movements and made plans to combat the dissemination of "undesirable literature" to children.

BURGLARS ENTER 4 STORES IN TOWN

AMERICUS, Ga., March 17.

Burglars were active Monday night in Sumter county, with five business places being entered. At Densoto, 16 miles southeast of Americus, practically every store in the town was broken into and robbed. At Americus the store of D. W. Whifford was entered. None of the robberies were discovered until this morning.

At Densoto one iron safe was broken open and in every store entered the robbers were looking for cash, although at Whifford's store a quantity of merchandise valued at $150 was taken. A thousand pennies was stolen in one of the stores entered by the robbers.

Stores belonging to G. W. Bagley, E. A. Luke, C. C. Womack and West Brothers were burglarized. All of these stores are located upon the main street of the town adjoining each other.

The hearing, which Thomasson did not attend, was on application of his wife, Mrs. Mary Thomasson, and Al Bolles, Stephen C. Rogers, Thomasson's attorney, neither consented to nor opposed the court's decision. Edward W. Terry, public administrator of St. Louis county, was appointed Thomasson's guardian.

JEFFERSON STANDARD NAMES MANAGER HERE

Appointment of T. H. Gant, of Asheville, N. C., to be state manager in Georgia for the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company, was announced Tuesday. The position was held until recently by the late R. W. Statham.

Mr. Gant has been manager of the Asheville agency for the past four years, that being one of the largest in the company's system. Formerly he was with the Gastonia (N. C.) branch, where he was among the organization's largest producers. Gant established several production teams and has served as president of some of the company's honor organizations.

The home office of the company is located in Greensboro, N. C., and local headquarters have been maintained in the Canada Building for many years. All its Georgia business is handled through the office in Atlanta.

NEW OWNERS PLAN LARGER BUILDING

Early materialization of plans for remodeling and enlarging the Metropolitan building, which occupies the site extending from Broad to Forsyth on Luckie street, was seen in recent developments reported Tuesday by the State-Cities Company, newly named to management of the building by the owners.

Renovating of the structure as the Volunteer State Life building, for the owners who purchased the property when they purchased the Southern States Life Insurance Company of Atlanta, and the two additional stories making the structure an eight-story office building, and conversion of the ground floor into a series of modern shops, constitute the final plans for the construction development. A total expenditure of $300,000 will be made for the improvement.

The contract for construction was let last week to the Griffin Construction Company of Atlanta. Final plans for the improvement were drawn by A. Ten Eyck Brown, local architect.

MASONS TO HEAR DR. SMALL TODAY

Dr. Sam W. Small, who addressed the Masonic Club at its weekly luncheon last week on the presidents of the United States he has known, will continue his remarks at the meeting today. The club meets at the Winnefield hotel at 12 o'clock.

The "standing room only" sign was hung out last Wednesday, which was considered the outstanding meeting of the year, and as another large attendance is expected today, arrangements have been made with the hotel to provide more room.

Dr. Small didn't have time to begin to say all he wanted to about the presidents he has met, and the members of the club said they wanted to hear more, so the meetings today. He is probably the only man living who witnessed the inauguration of both Lincoln and Jefferson Davis, and he has known 16 of the 30 presidents the country has had.

H. R. Hanes and Herbert W. Finch are in charge of the program.

Atlantan Wears Shamrock, Gift of Sir Thomas Lipton

State Sells Bonds.

RALEIGH, N. C., March 17.—(AP)—The state of North Carolina today sold $9,557,000 worth of bonds to the First National bank of New York at 4.02 per cent.

Letter from Sir Thomas Lipton to George W. Bosman, of Atlanta, telling of enclosing the Shamrock button which Mr. Bosman, in the lower left, is shown wearing, as he always does on St. Patrick's Day.

It all started with a little green and gold button belonging to George W. Bosman, of the First National bank of Atlanta. For the last ten years, on each succeeding Saint Patrick's Day, he was with the Gastonia (N. C.) branch, where he was among the organization's largest producers. Gant established several production teams and has served as president of some of the company's honor organizations.

The home office of the company is located in Greensboro, N. C., and local headquarters have been maintained in the Canada Building for many years. All its Georgia business is handled through the office in Atlanta.

NEW OWNERS PLAN LARGER BUILDING

Early materialization of plans for remodeling and enlarging the Metropolitan building, which occupies the site extending from Broad to Forsyth on Luckie street, was seen in recent developments reported Tuesday by the State-Cities Company, newly named to management of the building by the owners.

Sir Thomas Lipton was returning to England on the S. S. Baltic in 1929, and while an inspection trip up which Mr. Bosman assures us, Lipton had lost. It so happened that Mr. Bosman also was a passenger, and was introduced to the famous yachtsman as "the Georgian."

As the trip progressed Mr. Bosman saw a green and gold button, which he called "the Georgia," and before the crossing was completed the two had become fast friends. When the time came to separate Sir Thomas promised to send him the button.

So there is the story. Mr. Bosman is vindicated. And the doubting Thomases, we hope, convinced.

COUNTY REDUCTION URGED BY BARRETT

The economic welfare of Georgia, in the opinion of Charles S. Barrett, president of the National Board of Farm Organizations, can best be consolidated by cutting the number of counties, so that the resultant reduction in overhead costs of county administrations may be applied to the relief of the tax burdens now borne by the people.

"The value of this important safety factor has been known for years, but its use has been limited by expense. It is brought to you on the Ford as standard equipment only because of the efficiency and economy of Ford methods. Much pioneering work has been done in finding ways to manufacture in large volume at low cost.

It is interesting to know how the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield of the Ford is made and why it gives so much extra protection. The process of manufacture requires many separate operations, yet it can be explained in a few simple words.

Two pieces of plate glass, carefully ground and polished, are covered on one side with a thin coating of gelatine. This coating is baked hard, sprayed with liquid celluloid, and treated with a solvent.

Then, between the two pieces of glass, like the middle of a sandwich, is inserted a layer of special celluloid. This also has been treated with a solvent.

When heat and pressure are applied to the glass sandwich, this solvent helps to dissolve the surfaces in contact

ILLINOIS PRISONERS ATTEMPT NEW RIOTS

Unrest Manifest as Jury Absolves Guards of Saturday Killings.

JOLIET, Ill., March 17.—(AP)—Stiffed rebellion at the two Illinois anti-tuberculosis hospitals here surged to a new anti-climax today.

It began with a fight among 20 convicts at the new Stateville prison. The rebels were driven from the quiet room where a coroner's jury absolved prison officials of blame for the deaths of two convicts in a riot Saturday, and then a sister of one slain man attacked the guard who shot her.

But it died out in the dining room of the old prison as three mutineers attempted to renew hostilities but were hustled away before they could arouse their fellows.

An importunate insurrection began in the infirmary section of the Stateville prison by hand. Someone suggested a "riot" in the absence of guards and the 17 players fought over the idea, with their instruments as weapons. Five were treated in the hospital.

At the end of a day of sulleus and recurring disturbances the coroner's inquest determined the convicts slain Saturday "came to their death while assaulting guards during a riot." The jury exonerated Guards Frank Cuthen, who testified he fired the only two shots sent from the walls into the milling mass of men in the yard.

As the jury listened to Cuthen's testimony, Warder Yarbeck, son of Convict Albert Yarbeck, rose with a scream and rushed upon the witness, crying "murderer." She was dragged away, still hysterical and shouting Warder Henry C. Hill's name in the same terms.

Whenever the jurors passed through the yards, the convicts manifested a rebellious spirit. Guards quickly suppressed signs of another mutiny, but could not stop jeering catcalls and yells from leaders or others in "solidarity."

Girls' High Students To Plant Trees Today

School officials and students of Girls' High School today will take part in an active street beautification program at the institution with the planting of 5,000 seedlings of loblolly pines on the grounds.

Miss Jessie Muse, principal of the school, Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, and H. Reid Hunter, assistant superintendent in charge of high schools, will be among the officials participating in the exercises, which are to begin at 10:30 o'clock.

The seedlings have been shipped to the school from Louisiana, and within a few months will add much to the appearance of the school grounds. Fulton county and the borough are co-operating in the plan to beautify the grounds.

Miss Muse, principal of the school, Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, and H. Reid Hunter, assistant superintendent in charge of high schools, will be among the officials participating in the exercises, which are to begin at 10:30 o'clock.

The attack was attributed to labor troubles, as the men of the pipe company were being greeted by the Chicago Bridge & Iron Co. under an "open shop" policy.

As the guards, all special deputy sheriffs, traveling in three automobiles about 100 yards apart, entered a two railroad embankments, about 25 automobiles appeared from a side road.

"The cars began to circle around us in Indian fashion," said Jack Johnson, chief special deputy, who was treated for gunshot wound in the leg. "I told our men 'Don't come any further boys; stay off this road' and then they opened fire. Some of them fired from their cars. Others got behind trees. As our two other cars arrived we all jumped behind them and fired back from behind them. About 400 shot were fired, the shooting lasting about 12 minutes, but those of us who were wounded were shot in the first volley.

"We couldn't tell whether we hit the other men or not. They drove off after an automobile truck appeared."

The southern convention of the organization which will be held here, the fitting institute will be conducted by Mrs. Ellen K. Doughty, fitting director of the entire organization. Fitters will attend the convention from throughout the south.

Mrs. U. R. Lawrence, mission study editor of the home mission board of the southern Baptist convention, with headquarters in St. Louis, Mo., will deliver an address at 7:30

FOUR MEN WOUNDED IN LABOR GUN BATTLE

100 ARMED MEN ENGAGE IN CONFLICT NEAR ST. LOUIS PIPE LINE COMPANY.

ST. LOUIS, March 17.—(AP)—About 100 men armed with shotguns and revolvers clashed with guards of the Phillips Pipe Line Company today as they drove along a Hog Haven road to escort laborers to the tanks of the company, and wounded four of the guards.

The attack was attributed to labor troubles, as the men of the pipe company were being greeted by the Chicago Bridge & Iron Co. under an "open shop" policy.

o'clock tonight at the Druid Hills Baptist church, according to announcement by Rev. E. D. Newton, pastor.

Mrs. Lawrence has been on a tour through Latin America and she is constantly in touch with the many home mission stations of the southern Baptist convention. Her address will be an informing discussion of the conditions throughout the south today. The public is cordially invited to hear.

"I sometimes wonder who is representing America at the seats of government," he continued. "I am trying to find the spokesmen for the railroads and for the utilities, the textile manufacturers and the various importing interests. The senators for sugar and oil are not easy to locate . . . but it is not so easy to find the spokesman for America."

"It almost seems as if the the Americas were urged tonight by the public to end minority rule."

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP)—Americans were urged tonight by

Bainbridge Colby to rouse and redeem themselves from rule by "special interests" and "organized minorities."

Colby, President Wilson's secretary of state, said a "civilization that will suffer crime to pass unpunished . . . must quickly alter its course if it is to be saved" in an address before the Washington Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, attended by Secretary Hurley.

Bobby To Play Charity Match on Coast for Junior League Here; Young Stribling Planning Exhibition in Texas To 'Test' Public; Crackers To Play First Practice Game of Season This Afternoon

By Ed Danforth

Ain't Dis Sump'um?

From Rogers, Inc. (one in your neighborhood) came two agents yesterday and left an enormous basket of green vegetables for Wayward Boy, the Man Without a Mind. The Rogers men scurried away before they could be photographed. Wayward has been missing for two days. Apparently he is celebrating his 61st birthday in native fashion. In the picture above are, left to right, Ralph McGill, Basket of Vegetables, and Ed Danforth, best known as Wayward's Boswell. With the birthday gift was this card:

TO OUR GOOD FRIEND WAYWARD BOYE.

On this beautiful St. Patrick's Day

We feel to you is due

A friendly token, for we read this Mawin'

You have a birthday, too.

So here's a basket, all nice and green,

Filled up, we think, just right

With things to bring you best of health

And tempt your appetite.

—ROGERS, INC.

Birthdays bearing serial numbers beyond 30 dawn like thunders, if we don't watch out. A birthday can be and sometimes is a sickening occasion. It all depends on which side of the bed we get up.

Instead of looking at the recurring anniversaries as another movement of the cosmic clock, as another stroke of the gong that one day will quit ringing for us, we can consider them as heights attained. Instead of milestones on a journey that must end, they can be viewed as markers of progress.

Birthdays were glorious occasions once when we were moving ever so slowly toward man's estate. Why not still consider them as such; for surely we are going somewhere.

These modulated reflections followed a peculiarly happy luncheon at which several young men, companions in crime of the oversigned, gathered yesterday at the thoughtful instance of Ralph McGill to make merry over my own particular milestone.

We ate good food at the Atlanta Athletic Club. We told lies dashingly. We laughed in a rowdy way at jokes that some had heard before. We had a helluva time.

Yet viewed from the disadvantage point of the milestone that was passed ten years ago, all of us would have considered it a sissy party. Then the very thought of eating solid food at noon would have been repugnant. Then the idea of consorting with each other before dark would have carried no appeal whatever unless, of course, someone had produced a charred keg earlier in the day and libations had been enjoyed. And above all no managing editor or news director of one of our papers would have invited, the So-and-So.

All in all it afforded an excellent lesson in the way to regard birthdays. It was comforting to have learned that good fellowship and hilarity, even boisterous laughter, can be inspired by fried chicken and coffee.

If this be a sermon make the most of it. I am in a swell humor now over the old day that was kicked back into the discard and will take issue with any cynic on this subject.

JUST THE PLACE.

Phil Degnon, always traveling around and seeing things, writes from Winter Haven:

"The Phillies are in spring training here. Beside a ball field is a miniature golf course. Above the course is a large sign proclaiming: 'This is the spring training quarters of the Philadelphia National league baseball club. Exhibition games March 12-15-18-19-20.' What do you make of that?"

Well, Phil, considering the Phillies' record for the past decade they might as well train there.

THE CRUCIAL TEST.

Georgia Tech has entered its last week of spring practice. Several scrimmages will be held and the term will culminate in a regular game between two picked teams Saturday.

This week will be of prime interest to Tech football fans. Considerable light will be thrown on the probable makeup of the varsity team for next season by the way the young players perform.

Just now the squad is a jumble of faces; the coaches have not yet been able to come close to saying this or that man looks like a varsity tackle or fullback for the fall. This week will give them a better idea.

Dan Sage, Jr., Sinks S. S. A. A. Baseball Tee Shot at Ansley Meeting Thursday

Dan Sage, Jr., was admitted to Atlanta's hole-in-one club during the sun-day School Association, has called a meeting of all baseball team managers interested in entering teams in the S. S. A. ## BOBBY TO PLAY CHARITY MATCH FOR KIDS HERE

Jones Celebrates Birthday on Links; Likes His Movie Work.

By Clarence Nixon.

Bobby Jones is very busy making a series of educational golf pictures on the Pacific coast but he is not too busy to think of the folks back home. And through Bobby's thoughtfulness a lot of kiddies will be benefited.

When it was learned that Bob would go to the coast to make pictures, plans were launched by the Junior League for an Atlanta charity for children out there. Bob agreed to play, provided one-third of the proceeds would go to an Atlanta cause.

Bobby will play on Sunday, March 29, with Lee Diegel against George Von Elm, his former amateur rival and Mortie Dutra, professional at the Virginia Country Club, Long Beach. The match will be played over the Agua Caliente course.

The proceeds will be split three ways and one-third of the gate will go to the Atlanta Junior League for their fund for the Henrietta Eggleston Memorial hospital for children here. This should bring the Junior League a couple of thousand dollars to say the least. Those Californians like Bobby Jones.

Bobby is the Junior League, under the leadership of Mrs. Clark Howell, president, sponsored a charity match at East Lake in which Bobby Jones, Gene Sarazen, Horton Smith and Johnny Golden participated and the league resulted something like $5,000 for their hospital project.

Bobby celebrated his tenth birthday yesterday on the golf links with an exhibition of his short game for the second picture of his series.

His fellow film stars surprised him with a large birthday cake and a party at the intermission for luncheon.

Bobby Will Meet Von Elm March 29.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 17.—(AP) Bobby Jones, golfer's king, will meet one of his greatest rivals of amateur days, George Von Elm, now famous as the "businessman-golfer," in a charity exhibition match at the Agua Caliente Golf Club, Sunday, March 29.

Jones will pair with Leo Diegel, former national professional golf champion, now pro at the Agua Caliente Club, against Von Elm and Mortie Dutra, professional at the Virginia Country Club, Long Beach.

The match will be 18 holes. Proceeds will be devoted to charity, one-third going to the Junior League in Atlanta for their ward in the Henrietta Eggleston Memorial hospital for children; one-third to charity in Lower California, and the rest to charity here.

Shield's had an even easier opponent in Mitchell M. Rosenbaum, of New York University, and toyed with him easily, 6-0, 6-0, decision. It was Shield's most one-sided victory thus far in the tournament.

Two other seeded Americans advanced to the fourth round today. Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, second-seeded American, won straight sets over Edward E. Jenkins, Jr., of New York, and Perrine G. Rockefeller, of New York, seeded eighth, won from Travers J. Le Gros, also of New York, 6-2, 6-4. Sutter and Rockefeller are to meet in the first match of the fourth round.

Match will continue tomorrow against the winner of the Frank Bowden-Frank Bonneau match, which is the only third round match in the upper half not played. Shields, at the head of the lower half, will not play tomorrow.

The champion golfer spent most of the day in and around the 13th green of the Flintridge Country Club where he is making the second of a series of motion pictures.

At the luncheon intermission the star was surprised when a big birthday cake was brought to his table. When asked if he had any indications that the Atlanta lawyer, doubling in brass as an actor, would be in California for at least two months longer, Mrs. Jones and the infant Joneses were expected to join him before the end of March.

"I like it," said Bob, when he was asked for his reaction to the motion picture "game."

"There's a lot of waiting around and that's a bit tiresome of course, but I've grown accustomed to the waiting in the court house back home."

He's two weeks on location of golf course, has given Joe Jones a tour resembling the brown he acquired in the course of a full campaign and he has managed to play several rounds "for fun."

Dyin' with your boots on may be all right, but if I pass out that way I sure hope they ain't rubber hip boots.

Some dogs trailin' a covey act like they're sneakin' up on a tiger or somethin'.

Goin' "gunning" as they say in some parts, is just a polly way of sayin' you're goin' out to get yourself a mess of birds.

Plans 'Test'

YOUNG STRIBLING.

SEEDED STARS KEEP HOT PACE

Borotra and Shields Lead Advance in Indoor Net Play.

NEW YORK, March 17.—(AP)—Jean Borotra, French favorite, and Francis X. Shields, American top-seed, contend closer to the exhibition bout same as a means of getting in shape to fight Schmeling for the title in June. Pa and W. L. had considered an exhibition tour of Texas and the west, but after learning of the poor gate receipts collected by Schmeling on his pretentious tour, they temporarily gave up the idea. I gather that the Brownsdale bout is a sort of test case.

Inaction is beginning to pall on the young Georgian, perhaps. He has not been used to loafing this way. For 10 years he has toured the country fighting on an average of once every two weeks. In his ten years before the pro tour, he and his clubs has had nearly 300 fights. He has made every flag station between Boston and Los Angeles and has made repeated trips into the larger fight centers. Now he has been inactive since he defeated Tuffy Griffiths in Chicago, December 12, save for an exhibition bout on the Walker-Risko card in Miami in February.

TINY ROEBUCK AND ZAHARIAS MEET TONIGHT

Grappling Card at Auditorium Also Features Marvin and Lehman.

Two of our very buskiest red men take a lively chance of biting the hand that fed them at the auditorium mat tonight when Tiny Roebuck, giant "Cherokee," tackles over Zaharias, the two-hour match, and Tom Marvin, Osage bad medicine man, swaps holds with Charlie Lehman. The limb-twisting gets under way with a short preliminary between two local boys at 4:15, and then all the promises to be one of the most thrilling that Promoter Weber has yet offered Atlanta fans.

Roebuck, 245 pounds in weight, yet light on his feet and tough as they come, is regarded as one of the best prospects in the field. He has won every title of championship he could shoot at, and he has won most of them more than once.

Hagen has had harder sledding this winter but the fact that he got going again in the recent Coral Gables tournament will add more interest to the show open when he will find such formidable rivals as Gene Sarazen, Johnny Farrell, Tommy Armour, Harry Cooper, Al Espinoza, Willie MacFarlane, and many others who are capable of burning up a golf course, once they turn on the steam.

Hagen has set out to make his best bid for a big year. He is hitting the ball as well as ever hit it before, and is making a good start where he was once at his best. If he can regain the old putting touch he will be something to consider this new season. The scramble at La Gorce should be one of the keenest golf will know outside of the two main championships.

Gabby Street and his Cardinals have already served notice that any team good enough to win the National league flag this season will have to beat them out. They will be a better bet than they were good enough to win after a long and damaging slump around mid-season.

Loughran's Next Stand.

ONLY a short while back Tuffy Griffiths gave Young Stirling a good hard fight and while the Tuffy one lost the decision he was in good shape at the finish.

It will be interesting to see how the wived and re-edited Tommy Loughran can move against the western heavyweight. Loughran has already shown that he is a big part of the way back by his split-second victories over Baer and Schmitz. If he can hold this same edge and hand out a good thumping to Griffiths he will then be in line for a stab at Sharkey or any one else.

It took Loughran some time to discover that speed and skill are still big factors in his game. He was never a natural hitter and the addition of 10 pounds has only slowed him up or down, but also failed to add as much as an ounce to his punching. He was merely handicapping his natural talents. He is smart enough, fast enough and skillful enough to bother any of them, but he must be in the mood in taking as good a boxer as Sharkey, who also has a big weight advantage and a much harder wallop.

Another College Angle.

"I may interest you to know," writes one of the graduate managers, so signed, "that prospecting and herding together crack football players was beginning to kill off college spirit. Students who had paid their way were naturally pleased to discover that they had no chance against a picked group who had been gotten together, largely for the purpose of winning football games."

"I know in many universities the rest of the student body looked at the team as a group outside of the college idea, rather for one reason only. This took away a lot of the student interest."

"You may think this point is overstated, but I know a number of cases where it was true and where it had begun to do a world of harm, so far as the right interest in inter-collegiate amateur sport was concerned."

Dean S. V. Sanford Hits Subsidization

DAVIDSON, N. C., March 17.—(AP)—Dean S. V. Sanford of the University of Georgia, said here tonight that the subsidizing of athletes was the only "hemishadow" today upon the athletic horizon.

Speaking at the "athletic night" program of Davidson College, Dean Sanford asserted that if colleges would agree to eliminate the subsidization of athletes, "the voice of the reformer will no longer be heard."

"We expect success, and if we accept that we are going to merit the contempt of everybody. Some business men have made a success through what has been called moral bankruptcy, and if the present practices are continued the colleges are going to be similarly classified."

"THE STYLE CENTER OF THE SOUTH"

Adding to the Show.

IT WAS A MATTER of just 18 years ago that Walter Hagen made his first claim to fame. He was then just 20 years old, playing in his first big tournament at Brookline where Ouiet got his start towards golfing glory. Few recall the fact that Hagen was leading Ouiet and was tied with Vardon and Ray in only seven holes to play. His downfall came at the 66th hole of the championship when he topped a drive into a bunker, his grip slipping in the hard rain.

The next year Hagen proved his first start was no fluke by winning the open at Midlothian, leading Chick Evans by a stroke.

For 18 years the Stormy Petrel of Golf has been one of the leading promoters of the game. He has won every title of championship he could shoot at, and he has won most of them more than once.

Hagen has had harder sledding this winter but the fact that he got going again in the recent Coral Gables tournament will add more interest to the show open when he will find such formidable rivals as Gene Sarazen, Johnny Farrell, Tommy Armour, Harry Cooper, Al Espinoza, Willie MacFarlane, and many others who are capable of burning up a golf course, once they turn on the steam.

Diary of Boy, 9, Involves Mother In Probe of Father's Murder

NEW YORK, March 17.—(P)—

Mrs. Mamie Diller, wife of Herman Diller, druggist, hatched murder victim, was taken into custody on a charge of suspicion of homicide late today on a clue furnished by her 9-year-old son.

Mrs. Diller, questioned for nearly 24 hours, clung to a simple story of how she had discovered Diller's mutilated body in their Brooklyn home after she had taken her child to school yesterday. When arrested she stoutly denied killing the wealthy drug dealer.

The "autobiography" of the little boy, which he had titled "The Life of Martin Diller," detectives said, had yielded to them sufficient basis for the arrest. The lad had written:

"One day I heard my father and mother quarreling. Afterwards I asked my mother what they were fighting about and she told me I must never mention anything about it."

Mrs. Diller was slain in his bedroom, which presented a scene of wreckage. His skull revealed nine fractures.

A blood-soaked night dress of Mrs. Diller was in the bathroom. Another garment, Miss Helen Bershon, about 26, an authority-hair secretary, who police said admitted having known Diller intimately for two years, was questioned. She said Mrs. Diller was aware of her relations with Diller. Police said she declared Diller had promised to marry his wife and take her to California to live.

Detectives said the Bershon woman last night exclaimed:

"Well, I knew something like this would happen!"

"He always told me something like this would happen to him," they said she answered.

choice Turkish and Domestic tobaccos of which Camels are blended.

Make these tests yourself

It is so easy to tell the difference between parched dry cigarettes and fresh prime Camels that it is no wonder everybody is reaching for a fresh cigarette today.

Your fingers identify stale, dried-out tobaccos at once. While a Camel is flexible and pliant.

Your ears can tell the difference too. For a dust-dry cigarette crackles under pressure.

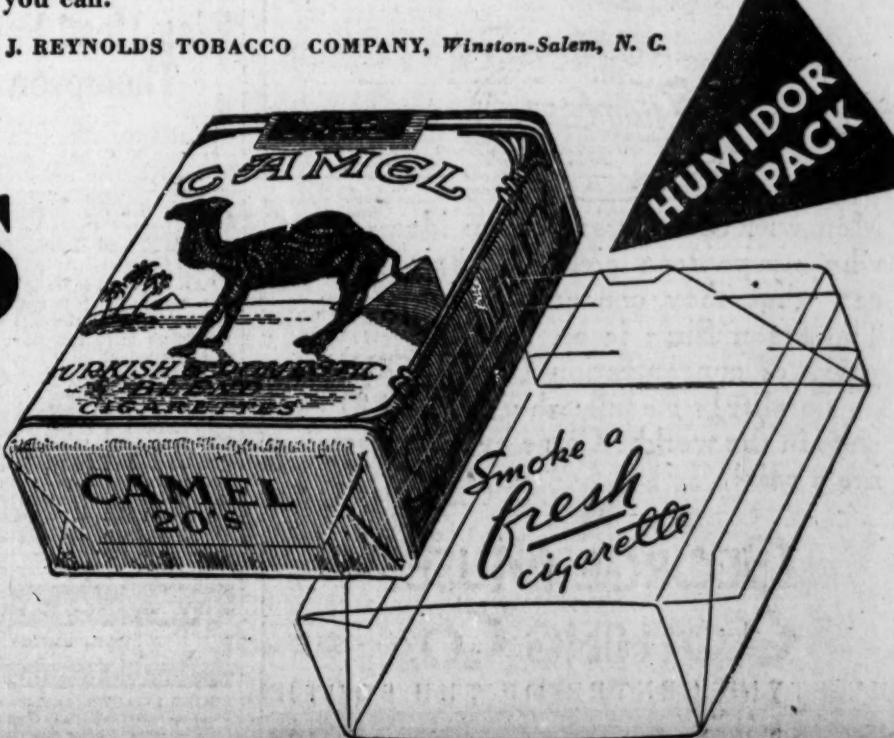

But the real test is taste and there is simply no comparison between the rich mildness of a Camel and the hot, brackish smoke from a stale, dry cigarette.

Switch to Camels just for today then leave them tomorrow if you can.

CAMELS

Artificial heat in houses and apartments soon dries the moisture out of cigarettes wrapped the old fashioned way. It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton—this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office.

"I have used Thedford's Black-Draught and on for twenty-five years," writes Mr. Davis Stewart, of 1912 W. 2nd St., Austin, Texas. "I took it because it was my father's home for many years and it was our general family medicine."

"My health was good, and that is about all I ever took. I used it for constipation and bilious sick headache. It is a fine medicine to take when a muscle gets up in the morning and will go away after taking a course of it. I feel fine. It ride the system of poison which comes from constipation."

Manhattan Night

By William Almon Wolff

INSTALLMENT XXXV.

Peter tore himself away from the sight of Benny standing, hands in the air, before Charley. He pushed past Betty, who clutched at him vainly, to the far corner of the bar, sitting at the table Zahn always seemed to have, as if by some pre-emptive right.

"There they are—those two!" he said. "See—at the table by the mirror, between the windows!"

"Right—I see them," said Purdy.

Only seconds had passed, really, though they seemed like endless minutes to Peter, since he had taken his eyes from Charley and Benny. Their features were unchanged, and as Peter crowded up, close to Charley, he heard him speaking, in his softest voice.

"Midnight yet, Benny?" he was asking. "You had an idea you wanted something before midnight tonight, didn't you?" he asked. "It's Ross."

"What the hell is this—a pinch, Mitchell?" said Benny.

"You're right it's a pinch," said Charley.

"All right—get on with it. You know what's comin' to you for this, don't you? I know who I stand in with don't you?"

"For sellin' liquor, Benny—sure I know. But it didn't cover murder."

And again, with triumph filling his voice:

"What time is it, Benny? What time is it?"

"How the hell do I know what time it is?"

"You got a watch, ain't you, Benny?"

Skillfully his hands slipped over Betty. But it was not much time he brought up his hand and transferred to his own pocket, but a pistol—own brother, by its looks, of the one that had killed Tack Thayer.

"Buy 'em by the dozen, do you, Benny? Come cheaper than you?"

"What the hell, funny, don't you?"

"I've seen guys pullin' down heavy jack that never cracked a joke as good as this, Benny. All right—let 'em down. An—what time is it, Benny? What time is it?"

"Oh, for God's sake—" Benny snatched his hand from his pocket. "Twelve-ten—and be damned to you!"

"I think that watch runs slow, Benny. I think you got a better watch than that. Come clean!"

And now, for the first time, there was real terror. Peter saw, in the light of the eyes, the pride in the movement of a cowering animal.

"No, you don't!" said Charley.

Once more a hand plucked at Benny's pockets. And this time it came out with a thin, white watch. Peter cried out.

"That's Tack Thayer's watch!" he cried.

Peter heard something click. Benny was standing, staring stupidly at his handcuffed wrists.

"Benjamin Ruffano—" Peter heard a note in Charley's voice. "I arrest you for the murder of Tasker Thayer. Anything you say can be used against you."

Peter waited in the bar. Zach, negligent, indifferent, leaned across the counter. Two uniformed policemen blocked the doorway; Peter had to stand behind them, and he could hear them in the hall; the sound of Emma's yellow face, with her slanting, Mongol eyes; of the fat piano player; of scared waiters. Meyer Zahn and Ross were back at the table; Purdy, watchful but with an air of easy unconcern, stood near.

"May I ask why I am being detained?" Zahn asked, silkily.

"Sergeant Mitchell wants to talk to you, doctor," said Purdy. "He will be here in a minute or two, I think."

Peter knew that Charley was doing. Just for a minute he had been in the small office; had seen Charley, menace incarnate, glaring at the maniacal Italian. Then Charley had ordered him out.

"Go in with Purdy," he said. "I'm going to sweat this wop alone for a bit. Hold it, Pete—we're in the home stretch now."

The policemen in the doorway moved. Mitchell came in. As Peter looked at him he saw triumph blazing in his eyes for a second. Then every bit of expression faded from his face; as he crossed the room to Zahn and Ross he was again the stupid brutal promoted patrolman.

"Ross!" he said. "Know what's happened? Know that Benny's under arrest for killin' Thayer?"

Hoover Orders Consolidation Of Veterans Bureau Activities

New Hospitalization Policy Announced at Washington; Allocation of Funds Made.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP)—Laying down a plan for consolidation of veterans' activities in the different areas whenever feasible, the veterans' bureau announced today that wherever possible soldiers' home units would be built in connection with existing agencies instead of as separate units.

The board of hospitalization made the announcement in making known plans for construction in the north-west Pacific.

Construction at the last session authorized $20,000,000 for soldiers' homes and hospitals. The Pacific coast projects will cost $2,100,000. The remainder is yet to be allocated.

The new policy, which has been approved by President Hoover, was announced as follows:

"That consolidation of all veterans' activities in a given area at a given point be made whenever the location and the facilities are of such a character as to make combination feasible in the interest of the veteran and economy to the government. This policy would be in accord with the act consolidating all veterans' activities in one federal agency, the veterans' administration."

"That, wherever it is feasible to add to existing facilities, or to establish similar facilities and thereby bring about a combined unit such action be taken. Such future utilization of suitable existing facilities for the purpose of providing domiciliary care would be according to law and economically carry out the government's long existing policy of making provision for veterans who are unable to

Miss Indifferent-to-Boys and Miss Prettiest Selected by Students of Tech Evening School

Of all the girls who attend the evening school of commerce of the Georgia School of Technology, Miss Helen Hospe has been voted the prettiest, and another very charming student, Miss Dorothy McKibben, has been stamped with the class reputation of "the girl in the work," and Miss Catherine Martin won the honor of being "Miss Tech Nite."

And now for the males: Guy Ward, it was voted, is the handsomest man, while Bernard Sauter is the most popular. Bill Zubler was acclaimed the most active male in school work; Weyman "Dad" Evans the "ladies' man." And Bill Crimmins was adjudged the best arguer. Therefore, it would appear that the Tech girls have nothing to complain of.

Shepard was found unconscious in his room at a local hotel by a friend, who telephoned to the hospital. It was said he had suffered a heart attack.

Red Cross officials took the congressman to London, England and other countries today.

The congressmen arrived here yesterday from Texas by airplane. They previously had visited other states affected by the drought.

Twenty-seven years ago he was injured in a train wreck in Pine Bluff, Ark. For four days he was unconscious. Slowly he regained his consciousness but his memory failed him. Then came almost three decades of wandering which carried him to the orange groves of California, the mountains of New Mexico, the coffee plantations of Old Mexico and the wells of Oklahoma. Last week he was staying with a man the name Burnham. Like a flash the name Lonnie Burnham came to Robertson; his children and home of Alexandria, his wife and home of Atlanta.

As the train stopped for a long sleep, Lynch Robertson caught the train for home. Today he walked into a store—operated by his son-in-law, J. J. Yarborough, on Monroe street. Mrs. Yarborough, his daughter, was the first to see and recognize him. Two other daughters, Mrs. Isham Hudson and Mrs. E. C. Curtis were summoned.

With difficulty he recalled their faces.

Were it possible to turn back the pages of history some 70 years one would have seen Lynch Robertson, a boy of 17, working in Moon's Guard in the Newberry district.

Valiantly he fought for the old south, and the end of the war found him healthy and vigorous. He settled in Alexandria, became a farmer, and established a happy home. Then he went to Pine Bluff on business.

The accident occurred in which he was injured. Now he rests in the family. Weeks grew into months and months faded into years. During those years Mr. Robertson followed farming, carpentry, and at one time operated a coffee plantation in Mexico. Now he's back home to stay.
